"In this issue we are doing a special on our new online service; following hot on the heels of the Web 2.0 revolution it's Buy2Let 2.0. (N.B. If you don't normally receive this newsletter, don't worry, you haven't been discretely added, it's a one-off)"

www.ibuy2let.com

Buy2Let? In a nutshell, what is it?

It's not a complex and cryptic array of spreadsheets. Nor is it a costly accountant. But it does the same job for those who rent out houses, rooms, apartments, anything.

It's free (kind of)

With a contrived formula we have managed to make it free of charge:

$$C = n - 1$$

Where:

C = Cost per month in GBP

n = Number of properties you are managing

So; your first property is free.

Only if you add more properties will your account need credits. Users charge up their account rather like you'd top-up a mobile phone.

The key thing I need are good reports

"It's always nice when you come across a nicely formatted pdf giving you all the info you need."

The Buy2Let reports have been carefully researched over 7 years in a real-world environment. There are loads of useful print-outs available as soon as you sign up.

Can it send my records to my accountants?

As software developers (not just software resellers) we will integrate the system solidly into any other environment. We can create links to Sage etc and send your accounts with the simple click of a button.

What's it like to use?

Grab a logon and find out for yourself. It won't cost you a penny for 1 property and following the web 'use on sight' concept, the system should require virtually no user training.

It's been designed to be minimalist, allowing users to get the job done as quickly and efficiently as possible. We have taken great pains to avoid 'bloat' in order to produce a competent environment designed for professionals.

"My company's too small!" "MY COMPANY'S TOO BIG!"

Buy2Let can cope with single property portfolios, and vast portfolios with thousands of properties.

Enterprise customers: we can import your data for you and would love to discuss anything else that might be on your mind.

Forgiveness required

So please forgive this indulgence into the world of sales speak. Next month, for our normal subscribers, we'll go back to our usually techie newsletter and revel in the backlog of exciting IT advances that are rapidly mounting up.

Bye for now.
